DYNAMICALLY MANAGING COMPUTER RESOURCES BASED ON VALUATIONS OF WORK ITEMS BEING PROCESSED

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A computer-implemented method, system and computer product including a scheduling manager residing in memory; whereby the scheduling manager dynamically manages access of additional computer resources to be applied to work items of a program based on their valuations relative to the processing costs thereof.